Who is ready to back your mission?

Find the sponsors? Get the meetings? Grow the support?

Impact Bridge books meetings between your nonprofit and the companies most ready to support you. We don't guess. We research signals that show a company is ready to support a mission like yours. A new CEO or VP just started and wants to make a mark. A company is growing in your area and wants to be known there. A company already gives to causes like yours and has the budget to say yes. Then we reach the right leaders and put real meetings on your calendar. You tell your story. We handle the rest.

Three steps. Real meetings.

We reach out to hundreds of companies and organizations without adding work to your team.

We read the signals.

We know when a company gets a new CEO, VP or community leader. New leaders look for fresh partners, so that is the right time to reach out. We also track companies growing in your area and those already giving to causes like yours.

We find who's ready.

We skip the general inbox. We find and verify the direct emails of the decision makers: CEOs, VPs, HR, community relations and CSR heads. Your message lands with the people who can say yes.

We book the meetings.

You get a calendar invite and a short brief on each company.

We built a system with tools proven to make outreach possible at scale and highly personalized.

Here's what that looked like for one robotics nonprofit. →

How First Chesapeake, a nonprofit, lined up 31 sponsor and partner meetings in seven months

31	117	1 in 4	7 months
company meetings and counting (Apr 17 to Nov 17)	replies from the people we reached	replies became a meeting	and ongoing

How it works

1. We find companies who are already interested

We find its leaders who decide on partnerships, giving and volunteering.

2. We write to them

Short, personal emails sent under your name, each tied to something real and recent about them. We pursue communications across several touchpoints.

3. Book the meeting

When someone replies, we confirm a time and you send the invite. You just show up for the conversation.

The Challenge

First Chesapeake runs hands-on programs for thousands of students and relies on a large volunteer network. Its small staff didn't have time to reach hundreds of local employers, and it wanted more sponsor and partner conversations without sounding like a sales pitch.

The Result

"Like a lot of nonprofits, our bottleneck isn't the mission, it's time. Since spring, Hyrenova has put 30+ new partners in front of our team - 300% of what we generated on our own in the same stretch last year - so our small team can spend its energy on the conversations that matter."
